ginning, and who have had opportunity to know much about its inner details, analyzed the letter of President Taft with the greatest interest. Some of them indicated the opinion that it was prepared in the main, or at least, based on materials prepared by Attorney General Wickersham and Secretary Ballinger; and beyond this, there was intimation to people thoroughly conversant with ple who have seen him at Beverly in the last few days, to do anything that shall deprive his Administration of the services of Mr. Pinchot. Beyond this wish of the President, there is the best of reason for the statement that Mr. Pinchot has no thought of resigning.

But on the other hand it is equally apparent that the fight will go right on Congressional attention will be give en to it immediately after Congress neets. The names of Senator La Follette, Senator Dolliver, and Senator Bristow are insistently used in connection with plans for a Congressional in vestigation. Senator Dolliver is chairman of the upper house Committee on Agriculture; he is the lifelong and intimate friend of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, and he is the admirer of Mr. Pinchot, and the vigorous supporter of the conservation program which Mr. Pinchot wrought into one of the more prominent and popular features of the Roosevelt Administration.

Possibility of Investigation.

Already there is discussion, based on real information, of the possibility of Congressional investigation; probably of investigation by the Senate Committee on Agriculture and of an inquiry by some House committee as well. It has been pointed out as at least highly suggestive that the members of Congress who have come to the defense of Secretary Ballinger and his program include some of those who have been the Serious Issue Is Raised.

But all possibility of a quiet suppres-sion of the main controversy, is considered to have been put out of con-sideration long ago. It is the most common observation that the controversy has taken the form of a sharp division between the close retainers and custodians of the former Roosevelt program, and those who have been un friendly to that program. A most serious issue now raised is that of main taining discipline inside the Adminis taken discipline inside the Administration. Nothing could be more unfortunate in view of the President's desire for a harmonious official family, than the disposition of the public to take sides in this matter. The public interest has forced a situation in which officials are finding it more and more difficult to maintain the judicial and non-partisan attitude on which they are still insisting.

It is pretty definitely known that while

TAFT UPHOLDS BALLINGER; ORDERS GLAVIS' DISMISSAL

Letter Exonerating Cabinet Official Charges Salient Facts Were Withheld.

The letter of the President to Secreary Ballinger follows:

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 13, 1909.

My Dear Sir: On the 18th day of August last, Mr. L. H. Glavis, chief of the field division of the General Land Office, with headquarters at Seattle, Wash., called upon me here and submitted a statement or report relative to the conduct of the Int. L. Department and to the action of yourself, Assistant Secretary Pirrce, Commissioner of the General Land Office Dennett, and Chief of Fleid Service Schwartz, in reference to the so-called Cunningn reference to the so-called Cunning-nam group of coal land claims in ham group of coal land claims in Alaska.

Mr. Glzvis' report does not formulate his charges against you and the others, but by insinuation and innuendo as well as by direct averment he does charge that each one of you, while a public officer, has taken steps to aid the Cunningham claims to secure patents based on claims that you know, or have reason to believe, to be fraudulent and unlawful. The report, which is volumished be ended with his letter and the dismissal of Glavis; that the controversy shall be dropped, and that it shall not necessitate the consideration of any other changes in the public service. He does not want, according to the most unquestionable advices brought by people who have seen him at Beyerly in the Reaches Conclusion.

I have examined the whole record st carefully, and have reached a very definite conclusion. It is impossible for me, in announcing this conclusion, to accompany it with a review of the charges and the evidence on both sides. It is sufficient to say that the case attempted to be made by Mr. Glavis embraces only shreds of suspicion without any substantial evidence to sustain his attack.

Glavis was honestly convinced of the illegal character of the claims in the legal character of the

In the interval, when you were not holding office, one of the Cunningham coal claimants consulted you in regard to the prospect of securing a patent upon to the character of certain evidence which was being used to impeach the Falidity of the claims by Special Agent Glavis. You accepted the employment, disited Secretary Garffeld and Commissioner Dennett, presented the question to them in respect to which you had been consulted, found that there was no

The public interest has forced a situation in which officials are finding it more and more difficult to maintain the judicial and non-partisan attitude on which they are still insisting.

It is known that, whether the discussion is suppressed as between official factions, influential public men are determined that there shall be further alring of the affair. In this connection the name of former Secretary of the fluerior Garfield's friends insist that the vindication of Ballinger amounts to a reflection on the Garfield conduct of the Interior Department, and there is circumstantial report that before many days Mr. Garfield will be heard from in a most public way. His voice, if it shall be raised as that of a partisan, will be accepted as also the voice of Pinchot, and the echo of Pinchot opinions concerning the whole conservation business.

Material Seems Plentiful.

It is pretty definitely known that while interfere with Mr. Glavis' efforts to defected into the controversey with much illuminating effect.

The immediate political effects of the position President Taft has taken are discussed with keen interest. The President is now fairly started on his Western tour, during which he is going to explain and defend the work of his Administration to date and to bespeak public support for its future work. It has not escaped notice that the West, which has been the seat of disaffection with the tariff legislation, is also persistently displeased with the Administration, sourse as to reclamation, forestation, waterpower, and coal land administration. Secretary Ballinger's course has not been calculated to strengthen the Administration in the affections of Western people, in Judgment may be based on expressions of the press and other exponents of opinion in that section. Indeed, this controversy has attracted vastly more interest and occasioned much more vigorous comment in the West than in the East.

Mr. Glavis seems to have taken.

Mr. Glavis seeks, by quoting from a single telegram in the department wished to delay him in his investigations of the Alaska claims and at another time unduly to hurry him, and he attempts to prove those two circumstances by citing telegrams and correspondence which he knew or had under his control, and which do show an entirely proper reason for the action which in each case was directed to be taken.

many others, but still most emphatically, against the accusatory statements of Mr. Glavis, is the fact that though his conviction that the claims were fraudulent or illegal was well known in the department, he was allowed during all the years of the pendency of those claims to remain in charge of them as an agent of the department when it would have been entirely easy for either you or Dennett or Schwartz to remove him to Portland or elsewhere, and thus take the claims out of his jurisdiction. Instead of this, with the consent and acquiescence of every officer whose corrupt motives in respect to the claims, and continuously in control of the taking of evidence with respect to the claims, and only when the claims were about to be submitted to hearing before a tribunal was it thought necessary. Mr. Glavis not having had any professional experience, to give them in charge of Mr. Sheridan, a lawyer whose good faith and earnestness in opposing the patenting of the claims even Mr. Glavis has not had the temerity to question.

I cannot close this letter without referring to certain other matters connected with your conduct of the Interior Department, which have been unfairly used in the public press to support a general charge that you are out of sympathy with the declared policy of this Administration, following that of President Roosevelt, in favor of the conservation of national resources, especially in connection with oal lands, with water-power sites, and with the system of reclamation of arid lands, which are all within the furisdiction of the Interior Department.

You also advised me that it was possible to procure from the Geological Survey an accurate statement of the water power sites which were available and which might be subjected to private ownership and that you could direct the Geological Survey to make such statements and that then there could be made temporary withdrawals of the land needed to preserve these water power sites until Congress could act.

The order revoking the withdrawal of 150,000 acres was made in April. Sufficient Information was procured from the Gological Survey to permit an order withdrawing the land upon which were water power sites in May, and this withdrawal covered about 300,000 acres instead of 1,500,000.
